

Henry Lee Dennard, Jr., affectionately known as “Pie”, 54, of Americus, Georgia, entered eternal rest on March 2, 2026, after enduring health challenges until the Lord called him home.

Henry was born on April 30, 1971, in Americus, Georgia, to Mary Jewel Wilder (Jonathan) and the late Henry Lee Dennard, Sr. He was lovingly raised by his late grandmother, Annie B. Dennard, who provided guidance and a nurturing spirit.

Henry was a member of Faith of Deliverance Church in Americus, GA, where he actively served in Sunday School and sang in the choir until his health no longer permitted.

Though his earthly body grew weary, his spirit remained steadfast. His life reflected faith, endurance, and love for his family.

He attended Sumter County High School and loved the University of Alabama, Atlanta Falcons, fishing, cooking, motorcycles, and family.

He had one daughter, Ieisha Hurley (Travis) and was the grandfather to one grandson, Broderick.

He was preceded in death by his father, Henry Lee Dennard, Sr.; his brother, Harrison Dennard; and his grandmother, Annie B. Dennard.

He leaves to cherish his precious memory: his mother, Mary Jewel Wilder (Jonathan) of Atlanta, GA; his devoted sister, Wanda White (John) of Manchester, GA; his wife, Tammy Goolsby-Dennard of Dawson, GA; his daughter, Ieisha Hurley (Travis) of Americus, GA; his grandson, Broderick Perry of Americus, GA; his devoted aunts and uncles: Helen Sims (Wilbur) of Americus, GA; Annie Barthell (Samuel) of Americus, GA; Ruby Dennard of Americus, GA; Shirley Terry (Tom) of Albany, GA; Flora Solomon of Americus, GA; two uncles: Willie Dennard (Francis) of Americus, GA and Jerry Dennard of Atlanta, GA; a mother-in-law, Alene Goolsby of Douglas, GA; a stepdaughter, Tamia Marshall of Dawson, GA; a sister-in-law, Trina Goolsby of Douglas, GA; and a brother-in-law, Tyrone Goolsby of Douglas, GA; a grandson, Remington Scott of Dawson, GA and a host of cousins, including Sharon Jennings, of Atlanta, GA who was raised as a sister.
