

We Do Not Say Goodbye

We do not say goodbye who come to mourn.
The tears we cry are really not for you.
We are the lonely. We are the sad forlorn, for when you died, a part of us died, too.
It is for us, the living, to endure the aching pain your passing left behind.

Your happiness is finally secure.
You have the peace which none of us can find.
The reason you were chosen can't be known.
We would have kept you longer if we could,
but God called you unto His very own.
He surely must have thought that you were good.
While missing you will make life incomplete,
the memory of your presence will not die
and since some happy day, again,
we'll meet as you proceed,
we do not say goodbye.

FOREVER IN OUR Hearts

About Henry M. Milliner: My Best Friend

I met Henry in 2006 and we became friends immediately. Henry was an AMAZING man and a great friend. It was my privilege and my pleasure to have been loved by him and for him to love me—for us to become best friends. I talked with Henry everyday.

He was funny and understanding with me. Our connection to each other was extraordinarily strong. Henry's parents and family should be enormously proud of the way they raised him. He became an excellent man, incredibly good work ethics. He was an honest man and an exceptionally good friend to all he met. In Kentucky, his next door neighbor and friend for 14 years was Freddie Gillis. He was also friends with the Givens Family and Eric was his particularly good friend.
